PONTIFICIA
UNIVERSITÀ
URBANIANA

Roma, 28 febbraio 2018

Relazioni Esterne e Pastorale

Desidero con la presente portare a sua conoscenza un'iniziativa che la Pontificia Università Urbaniana ha intrapreso per l'estate 2018. Si tratta di una Summer School in Scienze Cristiane aperta a studenti universitari o laureati che provengono da contesti di altre tradizioni religiose (non cristiane), volta a fornire una conoscenza di base della religione e della cultura cristiana. Si tratta di corsi di livello universitario, impartiti da docenti della Pontificia Università Urbaniana.

I corsi si svolgono dal 2 al 30 luglio 2018 nel Campus che si trova a Roma, al Gianicolo. L'Università Urbaniana è lieta di offrire questi corsi in forma gratuita, concedendo borse di studio che comprendono, oltre le lezioni, il vitto e l'alloggio per il mese di luglio a Roma. Non sono comprese le spese di viaggio e gli extra, che sono a carico degli studenti o delle istituzioni universitarie che vogliono mandare loro studenti.

Oltre a queste borse di studio, limitate nel numero e rivolte a studenti che risiedono all'estero, l'Urbaniana è disposta ad accogliere anche studenti stranieri che già si trovano a Roma, per studio o lavoro, che fossero interessati a seguire la Summer School e che non hanno bisogno di vitto e alloggio.

Vi invio il programma nel quale sono descritti i corsi e le modalità di svolgimento. Se lei fosse a conoscenza di persone che desiderano acquisire una conoscenza autentica del pensiero e della tradizione religiosa cattolica, non esitate a portarli a conoscenza della nostra iniziativa o a contattarmi per ulteriori chiarimenti ed informazioni.

Vi ringrazio fin da ora per la cortese attenzione e per il seguito che vorrete dare a questa iniziativa che ci sta molto a cuore.

La prego di accettare, assieme ai miei saluti, i sensi della mia più alta considerazione.

I would like to inform you about an initiative to be organized by the Pontificia Università Urbaniana of Rome for the summer of this year (2018). It is a Summer School in Christian Science open for university students or graduates who come from contexts of different religious traditions (non-Christian), aimed at providing a basic knowledge of the Christian culture. The courses provided are at a university level, given by lecturers of the same Pontificia Università Urbaniana.

This Summer School will be held from July 2 to July 30, 2018 on the Campus of the University at Via Urbano VIII, 16, Rome. The Urbaniana University is pleased to offer these courses for free, granting a scholarship that in addition to the lectures include food and accommodation for the month of July in Rome. Travel expenses and extras are not included, and need to be borne by the students or institutions that wish to send their students.

In addition, these scholarships which are limited in number and aimed at students residing abroad, the Urbaniana is also willing to welcome foreign students who are already in Rome, for study or work, and are interested in taking part in the Summer School and do not need to be provided with food and accommodation.

In attachment I am sending you the program with the description of the courses and indications for registration. If you are aware of persons who wish to acquire an authentic knowledge of Catholic religious thought and tradition, do not hesitate to let them know about our initiative or contact me for further clarification and information.

Thank you for your kind attention and for the interest that you will give to this initiative.

With my very best regards,

Pontificia Università Urbaniana

Summer School on Christian Sciences for students from other Religious Traditions

Academic Year 2018

Foreword

The main institutional aim of the Pontificia Università Urbaniana is to provide higher education programs designed for pastoral care operators who serve (with different ministries and ecclesial responsibilities) in areas where the Church is a minority and other religions and cultures are dominant. The PUU belongs to the Educational System of the Holy See (Vatican City State) that is integrated in the Bologna Process for the guarantee of the European Standards of Education.

The PUU Statutes underline the importance of promoting an academic focus on non-Christian cultural and religious contexts, in order that "the presence of Christian thought be public, constant and universal through the effort of promoting higher education" and foster the knowledge of "non-Christian history, cultures and religions as well as the relation between the doctrine of the Church and their traditional wisdom". In this perspective the PUU is committed to encourage a higher level of understanding of the present reality of the Church and Christianity in non-Christian contexts at large as part of PUU mission.

The PUU was established in 1627, currently it is an international study and research center for Students and Professors from over 120 different countries, representing the widest variety of cultures and social and religious contexts. In this cultural reality, students not only prepare for the pastoral care commitments that await them after their studies, but also have the opportunity to experience a multicultural environment. Such experience facilitates a mature attitude open to new encounters and exchanges.

Through everyday student life, students discover new cultures and appreciate the gifts that each one enjoys. Our lectures offer personal exchanges among speakers, students and lecturers, promoting a fruitful dialogue between the elements of their own culture and tradition.

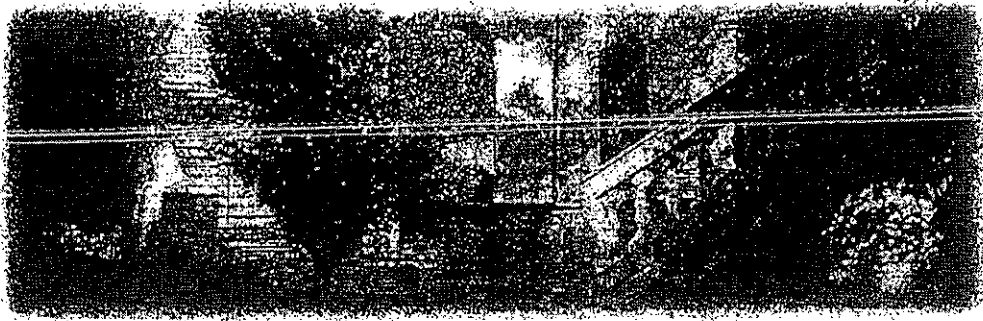

The Summer School

In the light of the above, the purpose of the Summer School is to allow students of Universities and Institutions of Higher Education from non-Christian majority Countries to have a study-abroad period at the PUU.

Our proposal is a program of study assuring a first-hand knowledge of the Catholic and ecclesial context and an overall presentation of its human and religious values and concerns for a peaceful cohabitation among communities from different cultures and religions.

We wish to provide an actual understanding of the contemporary Catholic world in order to form experts from non-Christian contexts who may overcome possible misrepresentations and provide themselves concrete information about Christian culture and religion.

In the last editions of the Summer School on Christian Sciences we had in Rome Students from: Egypt, Turkey, United States of America, China (Taiwan), People's Republic of China, Israel, Kosovo, Azerbaijan, Malaysia, Italy, etc.

Modalities of implementation

The 2018 Summer School on Christian Sciences will be held during the month of July (from 2 to 31) at the PUU and it is addressed to a group of 15 students of different Countries from non-Christian religious traditions.

The courses will be held in English with a total duration of 150 hours including classes, seminars, guided tours and meetings with authoritative representatives from the cultural catholic world and ecclesiastical institutions.

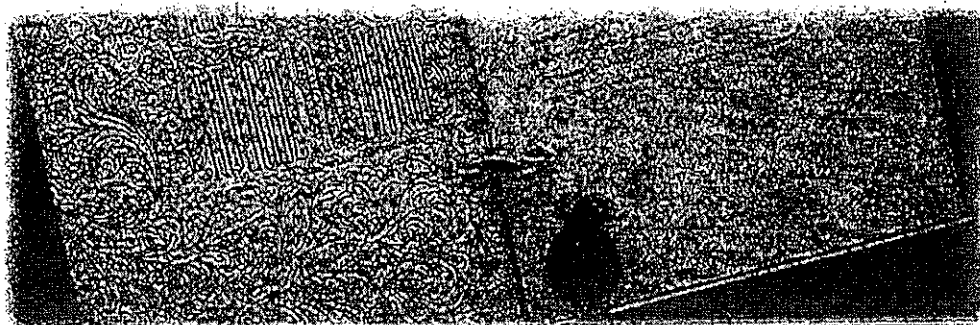

The PUU offers a "residential scholarship" to a limited number of foreigner students coming for abroad which includes from July 2nd to 31st:

- Free accommodation with services and board (food served three times a day in a public structure);
- lectures, use of the structures of the University (classes, library, wi-fi zones, etc...).

Every further expense (visa, international travel fares, pocket money, local transports, etc...) will be at personal charge of the Students.

The PUU offers also a "non-residential scholarship" to a limited number of foreigner students already resident in Rome, for study or work reasons, which includes from July 2nd to 31st:

- lectures, use of the structures of the University (classes, library, wi-fi zones, etc...).
